'This is life threatening'

3 chemicals found in vape investigation at MCHS

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff writer

"At this time, we are looking for answers and seeking information. However, the longer this goes, the more dangerous the situation becomes — this is life threatening."

Those were the words of Madison School Resource Officer Tim Armstrong in a news release from Madison Consolidated Schools Monday, after nine students were transported to King's Daughters' Hospital last week when they showed symptoms of elevated heart rate, dilated pupils, fluctuated breathing patterns, limpness or in some cases, a loss of consciousness. Evidence of vaping, including pods and cartridges, has been confirmed in every incident.

"In some cases, the students who were transported were treated because they were not breathing, their hearts had stopped beating — this is a very dangerous, potentially deadly situation," Armstrong said. "Should this situation turn fatal, someone will be held responsible — and it will be a very different discussion."

According to the MCS news release, the ninth MCHS student confirmed Friday was showing similar symptoms for the second time that week. After further review of the cases, it was determined that at least one other student was transported three times with similar symptoms within a matter of days, the school corporation said.

"Sadly, at the end of the day, this comes down to choices these students are making," said Superintendent Jeff Studebaker. "These kids are choosing to vape, they are choosing to add chemicals to an already dangerous substance, and some are making the repeated same poor choice within a matter of days."

State police set up a mobile lab on school grounds Friday and found three chemical substances consistent in the pieces of evidence analyzed, the school district said. MCS will release the names of the chemicals once testing is finished at the State Department of Toxicology and a report is made available by ISP.

School resource officers are also looking for a common thread of shared or separate devices and a common source or a location from where the substances were bought. Madison said SROs (school resource officers) are "tracking down leads from reports of supplies coming from China via the internet directly to homes and/or being purchased locally illegally by minors or by legal aged adults and given to minors."

Investigators noticed that a few pieces of evidence had a mixture of all three chemicals combined, whereas others may have contained a trace of one or two of the chemical additives. SRO and School Safety Coordinator Jacob McVey noted that the the more chemicals found in the samples, the more severe the reactions and symp-

Weekend floodwaters tease the area

Courier staff writer

The flood warning issued last weekend for counties along the Ohio and Kentucky Rivers extended into Monday after the projected crest on Saturday afternoon was delayed by a day locally, with the Ohio River topping out Sunday morning at Madison.

The crest finally came Sunday morning at 449.4 feet, about a foot and a half below the 451-foot threshold for more widespread flooding. The river had started to fall by Monday morning but still remained in the "action stage" at 448.9 feet at 7 a.m. with projections to be back below 440 feet by Wednesday — barring no additional rain in the region served by the Ohio River and its tributaries.

"We had a couple of roads go under water — Hanover Beach and Walker's Landing — but we're talking inches and not feet," Jefferson County Emergency Management Director Troy Morgan said. "I was out driving most of the roads over the weekend and most were OK. I don't condone it — I urge against it — but some residents were driving on the roads that were under water and they had no problems. The water wasn't very deep but you never know when a road bed is washed out."

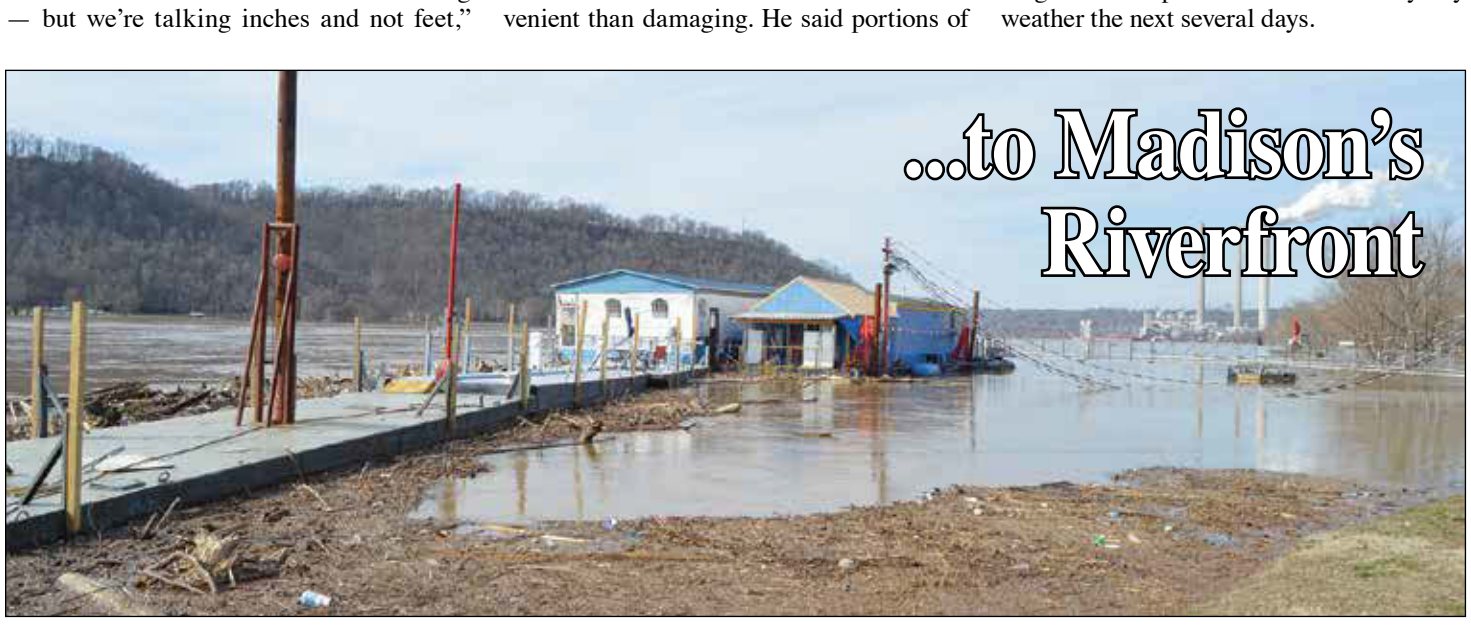
"There was no water on any homes so I think we dodged a bullet this time," Morgan added.

The Ohio River had covered the Madison Regatta Judges Stand above the Madison Boat Ramp and there was water at the edge of the sidewalk and on a portion of Vaughn Drive, but nothing that threatened any of the homes or buildings overlooking the river.

Trimble County Emergency Management Director Andrew Stark agreed, noting the flood threat last weekend was more inconvenient than damaging. He said portions of three county roads — Burkhardt Bottom, Wises Landing and Coopers Bottom — were all blocked by flood water as well as Spring Avenue and School Hollow Road in Milton, but water was not high enough to impact any residences.

"That's the third year in a row that we've had high water this week of February," Stark said. "It was higher in 2019 and a lot higher in 2018. The big worry you always have is that you'll have a year like 2018 where another big rain will come when you are already high and then you get flooding. In 2018 we were already high it and it rained a little every day for like three weeks until the ground was saturated and then we got a big rain and there was flooding. As long as we get a break in the rain we'll be OK."

Although the weather forecast calls for light showers Tuesday morning, the long range weather pattern indicates mostly dry weather the next several days.



Madison woman charged in case of boy, 5, held under water

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

A Madison woman is accused of holding the head of a 5-year-old boy in her care under water in an angry rage after the boy had taken and destroyed her cigarettes. She faces three felony charges for aggravated battery, domestic battery and neglect of a dependent in the case, which occurred in January.

Emily H. Tucker

Emily H. Tucker, 22, Madison, was charged Feb. 11 and taken to the Jefferson County Jail. She appeared at an initial hearing in Jefferson County Circuit Court last week where Judge D.J. Mote entered a not guilty plea and set bond at $100,000.

Tucker is charged with attempted aggravated battery, a Level 3 felony; domestic battery, a Level 5 felony; and neglect of a dependent, a Level 6 felony, in connection with the Jan. 31 incident.

The Jefferson County Sheriff's Office first began investigating the incident when the boy's father, Austin Kelley, of Jeffersonville, contacted Central Dispatch with information he had received in a text message saying that Tucker, his ex-girlfriend, had attempted to drown his 5-year-old son. Kelley told police that Tucker had a no contact order against him and asked for someone to check on the boy.

Jefferson County Sheriff's Office Corporal Nathan Green went to the home on North Graham Road just north of Madison, and spoke with both Tucker and the child. Tucker denied the incident or telling anyone she had tried to drown the boy; the boy appeared to be OK and the two were on friendly terms.

However, a Department of Child Protective Services caseworker who later followed up on the case, confirmed that Tucker's sister, Angela Walther, had received a call from Tucker, who was staying at Walther's home on the day of the incident and was concerned enough to text Kelley because she thought he was nearby in Hanover and might be able to get to the home more quickly than police.

Walther told investigators she had received a phone call from her sister "wigging out" and noting that her son had taken her cigarettes and destroyed them and she had tried to drown him, but when she saw them later that day the boy was fine, police had been to the home and everything seemed OK.

In later interviews, which took place after the boy was no longer in Tucker's custody because Kelley had filed for emergency custody, Tucker originally denied the incident to a DCS caseworker who was conducting a forensic interview, but the boy told investigators "his mommy tried to drown him" by pushing him under water

Madison County plans jail drug rehab program

By KEN DE LA BASTIDE
(Anderson) Herald Bulletin

ANDERSON – With the number of inmates at the Madison County Jail declining, Sheriff Scott Mellinger is considering starting a drug treatment program and housing it in two empty cell blocks.

At the start of the year the average number of inmates was 270 in the jail, which was built in 1984 to house 207 people.

Mellinger said the number of inmates on Thursday was at 223, which could allow the start of a drug treatment program within the jail.

"If the numbers stay down over the next month I would like to convert two cell blocks for a drug addiction recovery and therapy program," he said.

One cell block would be dedicated for female inmates and the other for male inmates. Each cell block could house up to 24 inmates.

"We would have volunteers come in and provide the programming," Mellinger said. "We already have certified recovery coaches talking with small groups of inmates."

Mellinger said there are grant funds available which could possibly be used to contract for services.

"We've been begging for this to happen," he said. "There are some jails around the state with a program and there has been a huge change in the recidivism rates."

Madison County Sheriff Scott Mellinger

Mellinger said inmates being housed together with the same problems show that there is around-the-clock support within the program.

Inmates could apply to be a part of the program. There would be an assessment tool developed to determine the best programs, Mellinger said.

He said the jail's medical staff and correctional officers could nominate inmates to take part in the program.

"The inmates will have to do some work," he said. "There will be a curriculum and they will be accountable by homework to perform.

"This is a leap of faith by us," Mellinger added. "There could be some classification issues, but because the program includes therapy there will be some flexibility."

Mellinger said inmates leaving the jail will be encouraged to sign up for Medicaid and provided with a list of providers to get them on a long-term recovery program.

Aspire Indiana Health and the Jane Pauley Community Health Center are already providing services to the jail, and that support would continue after an inmate is released.

Mellinger said the new pre-trial rule adopted by the court system in January has had some effect in reducing the number of inmates at the jail.

The state started a pilot program in several counties of a Risk Assessment System, which will be used to determine if a person arrested on a misdemeanor or Level 6 and Level 5 felony charges should be released without posting a cash bond of $500.

The county implemented the program Jan. 1.

"It has changed the entire climate," he said. "With 230 inmates, there is less stress on the staff and inmates. Above 230 inmates the stress builds and the jail staff is unable to complete tasks."

Plants in other areas re-open

Cummins keeps Wuhan plants shut; travel ban on

By ANDY EAST
(Columbus) The Republic

Cummins Inc. has extended facility shutdowns at its Hubei Province facilities in China and is continuing a company-wide travel ban to that area as health officials continue to grapple with the coronavirus outbreak.

Columbus-based Cummins has 10 facilities in Hubei Province, including its capital, Wuhan, which has been the epicenter of the outbreak of the virus, now known as COVID-19.

Cummins facilities in other parts of China that were previously on an extended shutdown resumed operations between Feb. 6 and 13, company spokesman Jon Mills said.

"Impacted facilities in China resumed operations anywhere from the Feb. 6 to the 13 with the exception of the Hubei Province (including Wuhan) facilities, which we expect to resume operations later this month," he said.

Confirmed cases of the virus rose to 63,851 in mainland China on Friday, an increase of 5,090 from a day earlier, The Associated Press reported. The death toll stood at 1,380, up 121.

The acceleration in cases was not necessarily an indicator of a surge in the illness because the hardest-hit province of Hubei changed the way it counted cases, the The Associated Press reported.

Doctors in Hubei are now making diagnoses based on symptoms, patient history and chest x-rays instead of waiting for laboratory confirmation.

In late January, Cummins closed several production and distribution facilities in the Hubei Province in an effort to contain the spread of the virus, ensure the health and safety of its employees and comply with governmental requirements, the company said in its annual report, which was filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission on Tuesday.

On Feb. 4, Cummins Chairman and CEO Tom Linebarger told financial analysts that he anticipated that the company's facilities in Hubei Province would open by Feb. 14 and projected that the outbreak would have a "relatively modest" impact on the company's operations and revenues during the first quarter of this year.

So far, losses due to the outbreak are believed to have been delayed because Chinese factories were closed during much of January to let workers travel home for the week-long Lunar New Year holiday, Cummins officials said.

"We rely upon these facilities to support our business in China, as well as to export components for use in products in other parts of the world," the company said in its annual report.

"While the closures and limitations on movement in the region are expected to be temporary, the duration of the production and supply chain disruption, and related financial impact, cannot be estimated at this time. Should the production and distribution closures continue for an extended period of time, the impact on our supply chain in China and globally could have a material adverse effect on our results of operations and cash flows."

Mills said the company officials are continuing to monitor the situation in Hubei Province.

"We currently have a travel ban in place for Wuhan and a travel restriction in place for China, which we continue to assess in an effort to ensure the health and safety of our employees, which is our highest priority," Mills said.

Clark judge apologizes for fight that led to his shooting

Indiana

JEFFERSONVILLE — A judge is apologizing for a fight outside an Indianapolis fast-food restaurant during which he and another judge were shot and seriously wounded. Clark County Circuit Judge Andrew Adams pleaded guilty last year to one misdemeanor battery charge in a plea agreement with Marion County prosecutors, who dismissed two felony counts he had faced. Adams received a one-year suspended sentence. He and fellow Clark County judge Brad Jacobs were shot and seriously wounded during a May 1, 2019, fight that followed a night of bar-hopping as they were in Indianapolis for a judicial conference. The fight and shooting also led to charges against two other men, including Brandon Kaiser, who's accused of shooting the two judges. His trial on 14 charges is scheduled to start March 16. Adams, Jacobs and Crawford Circuit Judge Sabrina Bell were temporarily suspended as part of disciplinary action taken by the Indiana Supreme Court in response to the judicial misconduct they were found to have committed. All three have since been reinstated. Adams said he was limited in what he could say publicly before his reinstatement, but that he now wanted to apologize for the incident, the News and Tribune reported. "I'm sincerely sorry it happened," he said. "The incidents of May 1 by no means define me as a person, definitely not a judge. "Everybody says 'Would you change anything?' Obviously I would have went back to the room earlier if I could change anything," Adams said.

Retiree donates share of nickel mine to Purdue

WEST LAFAYETTE — A retired investment adviser has donated a stake in a Canadian nickel mining operation to Purdue University that could eventually produce a big windfall for the school. Allyn Knoche, a 1956 Purdue graduate, donated a 1% stake in a mine owned by FPX Nickel, a Vancouver-based company. Revenue from that share will be divided equally between Knoche's son, his stepson and Purdue's Krannert School of Management, in a charitable trust managed by the Purdue Research Foundation. Krannert, which is Purdue's business school, will receive the son and stepson's shares when they die. Knoche, 91, said that based on current numbers — and an assumption that the mine in British Columbia starts operating within several years — Purdue's stake could eventually top $100 million over the next three decades. "There's no question that the ore is there," said Knoche, a retired stock broker and investment adviser who lives in Arizona. According to Purdue's figures, which are based on Knoche's numbers and FPX's estimates, the mine could produce more than 90 million pounds of nickel each year, turning out nickel for stainless steel and the growing market for battery-powered vehicles. "I was looking for something where it would help. … Purdue seems like it can make pretty good use of it," Knoche told the Journal & Courier. Purdue President Mitch Daniels said he has high hopes for the mine's future. "I don't know about you, but I'm watching the nickel prices on the commodities market with great interest these days," he recently told the school's trustees.

Purdue says tuition freeze will continue

WEST LAFAYETTE — Purdue University's tuition freeze will continue for a ninth year, the school's president told alumni this weekend. President Mitch Daniels announced Saturday that Purdue's tuition and fees will remain at current levels into the 2021 school year. The Lafayette Journal & Courier reports that the university's tuition and fees are at $9,992 a year for in-state students and $28,794 for out-of-state students. Daniels said university officials wanted to let students and their families plan ahead. "Giving an additional year of assurance matters," he said. "And the admissions people like to be able to tell people who are considering what school to come to." Purdue's freshman classes in 2018 and 2019 broke campus records, and undergraduate enrollment also set a record of 33,646 last fall. Daniels said he hopes that growth will continue. Daniels made the announcement during an annual alumni retreat in Florida.

Indiana State University to consider vaping ban

TERRE HAUTE — Indiana State University's trustees will consider a proposal to add electronic cigarettes to the school's ban on tobacco-related products. The Terre Haute campus is largely tobacco free under a policy that took effect in 2009, although the school has some designated outdoor smoking areas and it allows people to smoke in private vehicles. But a draft policy that would ban vaping will be presented to ISU's trustees this week. A final policy recommendation will be submitted for May's trustees' meeting. If it's adopted, the vaping ban would be implemented on July 1, the Tribune-Star reported. The school's trustees could suggest changes prior to adoption of any final policy. The current draft policy would prohibit electronic smoking devices, hookah, smoking and tobacco product use on property owned, operated or leased by the university. Their use would still be permitted in "the enclosed cabin" of privately owned vehicles, while designated campus smoking areas "will be gradually phased out in a manner determined by the administration," the draft policy states. No timeline is included for that phaseout.

EPA orders hazardous waste probe at site

EAST CHICAGO — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has launched a hazardous waste investigation at a sprawling former oil refinery in northwestern Indiana that was shuttered in 1973 and later was the scene of a major fire. The federal agency recently ordered Citgo Petroleum Corp. and Oxy USA to begin assessing and cleaning up dangerous waste at the former Cities Service Refinery site in East Chicago. Local activist Thomas Frank said that the EPA's order could be an indication that parts of the property could be reused eventually for industrial purposes, "I'm happy to see a cleanup is on the way. I'm concerned to see all the time that was wasted," Frank said. "We're glad there's attention. By them addressing the issues, they are posing as if they have a solution. What really is occurring is that they are putting a Band-Aid on it." Texas-Empire Pipe Line Co., a subsidiary of Cities Service Oil Co., built the 372-acre refinery in 1929 with 55 large storage tanks and a daily production capacity of 15,000 barrels. The refining operation, which chiefly manufactured and stored gasoline for cars, went through multiple owners over the years. The refinery became unprofitable and closed in 1973, and in 1980 it was the scene of a major fire when naphtha erupted in an abandoned storage tank. The Citgo Terminal Facility still operates 53 tanks on 228-acres on the property's northern end with a capacity of 180 million gallons of petroleum products, according to the EPA. EPA Region 5 Administrator Kurt Thiede said he appreciates "the willingness Citgo and Oxy have shown to cooperate and work towards our common goals of protecting local human health and the environment." "This is another example of the ongoing commitment that EPA and the State of Indiana – which provided valuable information about the site – have to clean up hazardous-waste sites in East Chicago," he said.

It is commonly understood that county residents abide by the regulations of the county, Madison residents abide by the regulations of Madison and Hanover residents abide by Town of Hanover regulations. It also is commonly understood that residents of each area turn to the county or the two incorporated areas for services and other help. Except if those residents live in the 'buffer zone,' which is now a source of confusion and much conversation among the three entities. The two-mile 'buffer zone' surrounding the incorporated areas of the City of Madison and the Town of Hanover are shown by the shaded areas. Some streets and roads on the outside of the area are identified to help understand the boundaries. The streets and roads for the internal boundary between Madison and Hanover are not marked. 2-mile jurisdictional area

County, Madison, Hanover putting heads together on issue

Courier staff report

Unless you're a resident of what is commonly called in this county "the buffer zone," you may never have heard the term.

The two-mile area that surrounds the City of Madison and the Town of Hanover has been the subject of discussion between county and city officials since late last year. It is now moving into an arena to solicit public input.

More than a dozen county and city officials met Feb. 5 at the county commission office to discuss how to begin discussions about the area, which is now split between the county and the two incorporated areas in terms of who regulates building and zoning and provides services.

The next meeting — a session in which the public is invited to provide input — is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 19 at Madison's City Hall. Questions can be emailed to Madisonpc@madison-in.gov

Jefferson County commissioners, Madison's mayor, Town of Hanover representatives, building inspection officials, survey department officials and members of the planning commissions and zoning appeals boards are expected to be there.

The recent discussions between Madison and the county began in the last few weeks when the county without notice to Madison or Hanover took action near the end of 2019 to rescind a county general ordinance that had, in essence, given to Madison and Hanover zoning enforcement oversight in the two-mile area. The language the county used to describe the action it was taking said "the present zoning ordinance is amended to remove the restriction against county zoning enforcement within the two-mile buffer zone and that the current zoning map is rescinded and replaced by the attached area of zoning enforcement map, which eliminates the prior two-mile buffer zone of zoning enforcement."

In response to a notification letter from then-commission-president Robert Little, Madison Mayor Bob Courtney responded in a letter that said:

"The City of Madison and Jefferson County have shared land use oversight responsibilities since the two-mile buffer zone was originally established in 1963. The two entities share in the oversight of the zone through joint participation on our Plan Commission and Board of Zoning appeals. In addition, the City of Madison has made substantial investment in the buffer zone to promote economic development, improve roads, sustain property values, and deliver water and sewer utility service to residents in the buffer zone."

Courtney asked for a 180-day delay in action by the county so the two entities could work toward a solution. The county commission then enacted a 180-day moratorium on its action and plans began for the joint discussion.

Both Little and Courtney acknowledged that residents in the buffer zone frequently are uncertain what governmental unit to contact about services and why property owners in areas where the county line and the buffer zone meet are required to adhere to different regulations.

Madison's website under the Plan Commission information says:

"The Plan Commission office administers the Zoning Board of Appeals, the Historic District Board of Review, and the Plan Commission. It issues building permits, performs building inspections, enforces land use ordinances, enforces zoning regulations, and nuisance ordinances." (City planning officials note, however, that the city does not enforce nuisance ordinances outside the city limits of Madison, which means it does not enforce in the buffer zone.)

The county's website says:

"In Jefferson County, the County Surveyor serves as the Director of the Jefferson County Planning & Zoning Office. Building Inspection & Floodplain Administration are also functions of the Planning & Zoning Office. The County Surveyor is a voting member of the Plan Commission by virtue of the elected position and a technical advisor (non-voting) to the Board of Zoning Appeals. The administrative office and staff of the Planning & Zoning Office is co-located and shared with the Surveyor's Office. (The county's nuisance enforcement is under the zoning office, which does not have jurisdiction in the buffer zone.)

"The Plan Commission oversees and approves new plats of subdivisions in the county (outside of the City of Madison's and Town of Hanover's zoning jurisdictions). The Plan Commission acts in an advisory capacity to the Jefferson County Board of Commissioners and sends recommendations to the Board of Commissioners on proposed new laws regarding zoning and subdivision regulations. The Board of Zoning Appeals holds hearings to consider and make decisions on appeals to the Jefferson County Zoning Ordinance.

"The Plan commission office staff writes building permits and approves surveys in the County Zoning. The office provides zoning enforcement for the county through its Zoning Enforcement Officer. The secretary serves as secretary to the surveyor and to the Jefferson County, Indiana, Board of Zoning Appeals and the Jefferson County, Indiana, Plan Commission. The secretary handles preparation of the appeals for the Zoning Board of Appeals and any applications or items to go before the Plan Commission. The building inspector issues building permits, conducts inspections of new construction and issues Certificates of Occupancy for completed construction.

Neither Little nor Courtney were able to provide a number for how many residents live in the area, but a search of the area against Census tract records found 2,468 structures in the Madison area and 859 in the Hanover area. That does not mean all of the structures are residences; some could be businesses or other structures, but it is as close to a number as could be obtained. Residents of the buffer zone do not vote in municipal elections.

Senate OKs plan board changes

By KEN DE LA BASTIDE
(Anderson) Herald Bulletin

ANDERSON – The first piece of legislation introduced by Sen. Mike Gaskill (R-Pendleton) to change how positions are filled on county planning commissions has passed the Indiana Senate.

Gaskill's bill, which requires members of county plan commissions to be county residents, passed the Senate by a 46-1 vote.

The legislation is being sponsored in the Indiana House by Rep. Tom Saunders, R-New Castle.

Gaskill is sponsoring a similar bill in the Senate that Saunders introduced in the House.

Gaskill's legislation would amend Indiana law to read that an agricultural extension educator must be a resident of the county to serve on the plan commission.

In the event the agricultural extension educator is not a county resident, the county extension board would be required to select a resident who is a property owner with an agricultural interest to serve for one year.

Gaskill previously said the Indiana Legislative Services Agency, which drafted the legislation, found there are eight extension educators around Indiana who don't reside in the county where they are serving on a plan commission.

Gaskill amended the legislation to allow the Purdue Extension offices to have their educator, if not a resident of the county, to be a non-voting member of a local county Plan Commission.

The voting member appointed by the Purdue Extension office in each county would have to be a resident of the county.

A second amendment allows Purdue Extension offices to name someone from the county to a plan commission by Oct. 1.

He said a one-year extension could be requested by the commissioners in the county to come into compliance with the legislation.

It also requires the designee of a county surveyor to serve on a Plan Commission to be a resident of the county.

The bill also was amended by Gaskill to include the case of a temporary member of a Plan Commission being appointed because of a conflict of interest. That person would have to be a county resident.

State law requires nine members on a county plan commission with one member of the county commissioners, one member of the county council, county surveyor, county agricultural extension educator and five citizen members.

Jennings County woman injured in crash with semi-truck

Courier staff report

A Jennings County woman was airlifted to Indianapolis with serious injuries after colliding with a semi-trailer at U.S. 50 and County Road 75 East at 3 p.m. Friday, according to Indiana State Police.

Samantha Suthard, 20, of North Vernon, was northbound on County Road 75 East and pulled onto US 50 into the path of a westbound Freightliner pulling a box trailer.

The vehicle was driven by Enel Brutus, 42, of Jacksonville, Florida. The front of Suthard's vehicle hit the passenger side of the semi and came to stop in the middle of the intersection.

Brutus' vehicle continued westbound before leaving the south side of the road and stopping.

Suthard was airlifted to St. Vincent Hospital in Indianapolis for the treatment of serious injuries, which are not believed to be life-threatening.

Brutus was taken to St. Vincent-Jennings Hospital in North Vernon for treatment of minor injuries.

Traffic flow on US 50 was affected for nearly three hours because of the investigation and cleanup.

The investigation is ongoing, but alcohol and drugs are not suspected to be factors.

ISP car rear-ended in stop

Courier staff report

Four people were injured on I-74 near Batesville Saturday after a vehicle slammed into the back of an Indiana State Police patrol car conducting a traffic stop on the side of the roadway, according to a news release from ISP.

Master Trooper Daniel Elmore was conducting the stop on a 2020 Peterbilt truck pulling a trailer near the 152 mile marker on I-74 eastbound. His 2013 Dodge Charger was parked behind Gladden's trailer with emergency lights activated. While he was outside of his car, a vehicle left the eastbound lanes and struck the rear of Elmore's vehicle. Three people were injured. The investigation is ongoing.

toms in students have been.

"We have been lucky up to this point," McVey said. "In some cases these kids have been on the verge of needing life-saving measures by emergency medical personnel."

Youth vaping is a problem at Madison and nationwide. The 2019 National Youth Tobacco Survey found that 27.5% of high schoolers and 10.5% of middle schoolers used e-cigarettes. The last Indiana Youth Tobacco Survey, published in 2018, found vaping had risen 14.7% among high schoolers since 2012 and 4.3% among middle schoolers across the state.

Jefferson County Prosecutor David Sutter said his office has received more than 40 cases of underage vaping from Madison SROs since the beginning of the school year.

"The rise in the use of vaping devices among minors has presented new and dangerous challenges due to the combination of chemicals involved. My office is committed to working with school officials to strictly enforce laws concerning the use and sale of tobacco and electronic cigarettes to minors. The health and safety risks are too high and I hope this will be a wake-up call to youth who are choosing to engage in this dangerous behavior," Sutter said in the release. "As this continues to be investigated, I will be working closely with school leaders and I will also seek to work with the State Legislature on additional ways to address vaping devices in schools."

Madison employs a five-tiered discipline system when dealing with students who are caught with vapes or other banned substances like cigarettes and alcohol, starting with a written apology, talk with school counselor or detention and ending with long-term suspension, expulsion or referral to alternative education. Students may be referred to the juvenile court if caught, per school policy.

"Our goal and intent is to keep our students on campus and in class — that is our job," Studebaker said. "Our feeling is if we suspend or expel every student we discipline for use of these types of products, we are failing them not only academically, but providing an easier path for use of these dangerous devices, as well as, possibly other activities that are not healthy."

with her hands in the tub but that afterward "she was crying and saying she was sorry."

In another interview conducted by Jefferson County Sheriff's Detective Yancy Denning, Tucker said she "did not remember" the incident and suffered from "Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) because of an abusive relationship."

Tucker said she does recall being angry and upset with the boy over the cigarettes as well as a custody issue and for not washing his hair during a bath. She said she dunked his head to get it wet so that he would wash his hair and that she can remember yelling at him and her sister on the phone and that he was "probably scared and probably hurt, but what person in her right mind would do something like that."

Tucker told investigators she planned to check herself into Wellstone Regional Hospital in Jeffersonville, a facility that treats patients for mental health issues, mood disorders, behavioral problems and substance abuse issues, for her PTSD but that Wellstone had decided she did not need inpatient treatment and referred her to Centerstone, a facility that treats some of the same conditions as an outpatient, in Madison.

Tucker told police she "honestly does not remember what happened," but that the boy "grabbed her last three cigarettes and crumbled them up on the ground and hid them from her," and that since she was already mad, she snapped. She told Denning that while she doesn't remember trying to drown the boy, she "remembers feeling like she had done something wrong" and that the boy "was upset and crying" and that she "remembers holding him and telling him she was sorry."

Rebels smother 4th-ranked South Decatur 81-69

By ROB LAFARY
Courier Staff Writer
sports@madisoncourier.com

Southwestern faced off against the state's top-ranked scoring team on Saturday night but a blend of firepower and tenacity on the defensive end prevailed as the Rebels played spoiler in an 81-69 upset of Class 2A No. 4 South Decatur at King Gymnasium.

Paced by a season-high 40 points from junior guard Foster Mefford, Southwestern never trailed while defensively stopping a South Decatur team that was averaging 90 points per game in its tracks. The Cougars were held to their second lowest point total on the year as the Rebels never surrendered control.

"I thought the big thing we did right was make them (South Decatur) guard us," Southwestern head coach Jerry Bomholt said. "I've not seen anybody else on film or in person challenge them to make plays on defense and I felt like we did that. I told our kids before the game in the locker room that this group is the only one that truly in their hearts feels like we could win this game. There might be a few others but our group believed. It was a good performance for our kids."

On offense, Southwestern had the hot hand early from beyond the arc, drilling five 3-pointers — including three by Mefford — in the opening frame to build a nine-point lead. Starting with Zach Cole's layup to push the lead to 11 points, the Rebels then switched gears and spent the rest of the night attacking the basket.

Whether in transition off turnovers or breaking through South's full-court press, the Rebels made it a point to drive to the hoop. Outside of a Colton Cloud 3-pointer, Southwestern went for 12 points in the paint in the second quarter and Mefford drew contact that led to six made free throws as the Rebels led by as many as 13 points and took a 39-28 lead into halftime.

Much of the same continued in the second half with South Decatur ultimately succumbing to Southwestern's physicality and disciplined play. Mefford and Cole tag-teamed on defense

Cubs battle in 66-59 loss at No. 5 Pirates

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

GREENSBURG — Madison looked nothing like a team that had lost seven-straight games, battling Class 3A No. 5 Greensburg down to the end before falling 66-59 Friday on the road.

The Cubs led at halftime and by as many as five in the third quarter before Greensburg rallied to go ahead 44-40 heading into the fourth.

Madison stayed close throughout the final quarter and trailed only 56-54 after a Mason Welsh basket with 1:48 to play.

But Greensburg went a perfect 8-for-8 from the free-throw line and two crucial turnovers down the stretch sent Madison to its eighth-straight loss.

While Madison coach Sherron Wilkerson was pleased with his team's effort, he also said that defeat was not an option he considers.

"That's all that matters at the end of the day. There are no moral victories," Wilkerson said. "I'm proud of the kids. They played hard but against teams like this, there is very little room for error. I thought we got off to a slow start and climbed back and we got off to a slow start again in the second half and it's hard to dig yourself out of that hole. But I'm proud of the way they fought back."

Madison (10-10) looked nothing like the team that would have a chance to win late after a slow start. The Cubs turned the ball over six times in the first quarter alone and Greensburg found itself in the bonus less than seven minutes into the game.

Trailing 20-9, Madison quickly reversed that trend in the second quarter by taking better care of the basketball and playing better defense. The result was a rousing rally that saw junior Nick Center scored six-straight points at one juncture and Parker Jones put in a rebound for the go-ahead bucket at the buzzer to stake the Cubs to a 32-31 halftime lead.

Madison opened the third with six-straight points on two baskets by Welsh and one from Center to take its biggest lead of the game, 38-33 with 4:24 left in the frame. But Greensburg rallied to take the lead for good,.

Lane Sparks scored five-straight points and the Andrew Welage scored six-straight as the Pirates closed the third on an 11-2 run to take a 44-40 lead into the fourth. But Madison wasn't ready to go away.

The Cubs got as close as 50-49 on a Center basket with 4:37 to go and had a golden opportunity to spring the upset several minutes later after Welsh's basket closed the gap to two with 1:48 to go. A Greensburg miss gave the ball back to Madison, but the Cubs promptly turned the ball over leading to a Welage transition basket and a four-point play.

A missed shot on Madison's next possession led to two Sparks free throws and a questionable double-dribble call on a Welsh pump fake on the next possession with 32 seconds left led to two more free throws and essentially ended the game.

Freshman Kaden Oliver converted a three-point play with 23 seconds to go to pull Madison to within five (62-57) but four more free throws by

Tops beat Pacers for 1st ORVC win since 2015

By ROB LAFARY
Courier Staff Writer

Shawe's boys basketball program has suffered mightily in recent years but on Friday night the Hilltoppers erased some of that misery en route to an Ohio River Valley Conference win that was long overdue.

Powered by a near-perfect first-half performance, Shawe built a double-digit lead against ORVC rival Switzerland County and then held off a comeback effort by the Pacers to pick up a huge 73-69 win at Meny Gym.

The victory is Shawe's first win in ORVC play since Feb. 24, 2015 when the Hilltoppers defeated Milan 52-41 to close out the regular season. It also marks the first Shawe win over Switzerland County in nine years, a 54-48 overtime decision in Vevay on Feb. 5, 2011.

"I asked a lot of our kids tonight," Shawe head coach Dan Hambrick said. "We were two teams looking for our first conference win so we knew this was going to be huge. But what a great win for these kids. I'm just tickled to death for our seniors. It's their last weekend here at home and I'm just really excited for them. That's just a big win."

Playing without starting guard Jack Grote, who rolled an ankle in Thursday's practice, and bench player Braeden Collins, who was participating in a school band trip, Shawe was forced to play short-handed on Friday but that didn't stop the Hilltoppers from a memorable first half.

Switzerland County led 2-0 for its only lead of the game and soon after Shawe tied the game and stormed out to a 14-3 run. Elijah Goins kick-started the rally with a bucket and that was followed with two Grayson May 3-pointers and a layup from Henry Grote. The Hilltoppers led 16-5 after a Grote three and a Chandler Cole basket, eventually leading 19-11 at the end of the first quarter.

Coby Chase scored four points and Damian Breeck added a bucket as the Pacers hung around at 22-17 early in the second frame but Shawe again made a run, this time jumping out to a dominant double-digit advantage.

The trio of Goins, May and Grote again sparked the 10-0 rally that gave the Hilltoppers a commanding 15-point lead. Ethan Stuart then added to the mix late — after the Pacers had slashed the lead to within 12 points — by scoring four points of his own to push the advantage back to 16. Shawe led by as many as 18 in the first half and finished shooting 59% from the field with Hambrick praising his team highly for its first 16 minutes.

"That is probably the best first half we have played all year long," Hambrick said. "The intensity, we ran our offense, we were patient, we made great passes. I told the guys if we can put together that kind of performance for 32 minutes, I wouldn't want to draw us in the sectional. I honestly wouldn't. I think we could be a team people forget about."

As has been the case this season, Switzerland County made a second half comeback that lasted up until the buzzer at the end of the game. Within four minutes into the third quarter, the Pacers rode the back of point guard Landon Wilks, who scored eight points, to pull the Swiss to within 45-37 and a minute later trailed by six after a bucket by Breeck.

Shawe fended off the rally with a 3-pointer by May and two free throws by Stuart, each inching the margin back to nine points but the Pacers again used the tandem of Breeck and Wilks to cut into the margin. Breeck connected on a three and Wilks canned two freebies and Switzerland County trailed by just three points.

Heading into the fourth quarter, however, the Hilltoppers snatched the momentum again with hopes of putting an early end to the comeback.

Behind five points by Grote and a basket each by Stuart and Cole, Shawe took a 62-49 lead with 5:18 left in the game and at the 3:32 mark still led by nine points.

Not to be outdone, Breeck answered with a quick bucket and Wilks followed with a 3-pointer. Chase then sank two free throws and with 2:03 remaining Shawe's lead was down to 64-62.

Wilks would later bomb in another three for Switzerland County to trail 66-65 but a pair of free throws each b May and Stuart in between had stretched the Shawe lead back to five points. The Pacers then trailed 71-69 with 43 seconds left and had a chance at a tie but Breeck missed two free throws, allowing the Hilltoppers to salt away the win at the free-throw line with Cole, Grote and Stuart each adding one from the stripe to stretch the lead for good.

"The thing is you can't wait until you are down by 18 points to have that kind of effort tonight," Pacer head coach Adam Dennis said. "We've been waiting the last couple weeks to see that effort and that passion to compete. We saw that in the second half and if we had seen that in the first half this game could have went differently. We were proud of the second half effort."

"Adam (Dennis) does a great job with those kids," Hambrick said. "You know that teams are going to make a run and try to punch you in the mouth. We made some bonehead plays and made some bad passes in the second half but that's stuff we can reel in and correct. The six guys we had on the floor tonight played extremely hard. We are going to be all right."

Wilks' big second half gave way to a team-high 20 points on 6-of-11 shooting including four 3-pointers. Breeck struggled from the field but the Pacers' leading scorer added 18 points with nine rebounds and six assists to close to within seven points from 1,000 for his career. Chase added 17 points.

"When Landon (Wilks) is locked in he is really good," Dennis said.

"It took that first half for him to get locked in and second half he was really good. He and Damian (Breeck) were both really good tonight but I also thought Coby (Chase) was fantastic. The way that he attacked the rim and he hit several nice pull up jumpers so I was pleased with that second half he had too."

Shawe put four players in double figures led by Grote, who was 9-for-17 from the field and hit four 3-pointers to lead all scorers with 23 points along with seven rebounds and six assists. Stuart followed closely with 18 points on 5-of-6 shooting and an 8-of-9 performance from the free-throw line with seven boards.

Cole was 6-of-10 for 15 points and May was 4-of-6 with 14 points. The Hilltoppers shot 57% from the field for the game.

Shawe 51, South Central 43 (Saturday) — Shawe closed the game on a tear to pull out a 51-43 win over South Central at home in boys basketball on Saturday.

The Hilltoppers entered the fourth quarter holding just a 29-28 lead but scored 22 points over the final eight minutes to pick up their third-straight win.

Senior Stuart had a double-double of 19 points and 10 rebounds to lead Shawe while May scored 13 and Henry Grote added nine.

The Hilltoppers shot 52% (14-of-27) from the floor but were also 20-of-25 at the free-throw line. South Central shot just 16-for-40 (42%).

Dylan Patterson had 17 points to lead the Rebels.

Shawe, now 9-11 on the season, travels to Rock Creek on Friday and closes out the regular season at Milan on Tuesday, Feb. 25.

Franklin Co. 58, Switzerland Co. 56 (Saturday) — Breeck became the fifth player in school history to reach 1,000 career points but Switzerland County suffered a heart-breaking loss at the buzzer, 58-56, at Franklin County on Saturday. Breeck came into the game needing only seven points to reach the milestone and got the big point with 3:07 left in the first quarter.

and in transition to combine for 15 points as the lead hit 14. By the fourth quarter, the Rebels lead shot up to 24 points after layups by Mefford and Austin Kramer with still 5:19 to go in the game and from there Southwestern put the game in cruise control.

"All in all we made them play defense," Bomholt said of the game plan on offense. "Anytime you can do that to a team that is high scoring sometimes they can get frustrated. I thought at times we got them frustrated. And we still missed some free throws and layups that could have made the margin bigger."

As good as Southwestern's offense was, the Rebels' defense was perhaps better — nearly flawless outside of a late fourth quarter scoring spurt that saw South's Dominic Walters hit for 16 points to help the Cougars trim the deficit by the final horn.

South Decatur (19-2) put up shots but with a hand in their face, found that made buckets were hard to come by. The Cougars shot just 37% from the field (23-of-61) and were 8-of-30 from the 3-point line for 26%.

On top of the shooting woes, Southwestern's perimeter defense laid claim to many of South Decatur's 22 turnovers. Of the 22, 15 turnovers came off of steals on the top of the Southwestern zone defense. Cole led the defensive effort with six steals while Mefford added five steals and Kramer made up for a cold night on offense with four steals, allowing the Rebels points in transition.

"We did a lot of things to counteract what they do on offense," Bomholt said. "Boy can they get the ball down the floor and shoot it in a hurry. There were times where we stopped their sideline break and when they got the ball in the middle we were able to double team and do some things we worked on and were able to get out and get the ball to our end."

As others struggled to find their shot but played a role in other areas on the floor, the tandem of Mefford and Cole was on both ends of the floor vital in Southwestern's success.

Mefford's 40 points on 65% shooting balanced near even through both halves, scoring 17 points in the first half and 23 points in the second half including 13 points in the fourth quarter. The junior added seven rebounds and six assists to go along with his five steals, winning a heavily-anticipated battle of the point guards against Walters of South Decatur.

"The talk was their point guard against our point guard," Bomholt said. "I know the (Dominic) Walters kid from South and he's a pretty good player, but I think our kid (Foster Mefford) is, if not the best, one of the best point guards in southern Indiana. We felt like we had that advantage that if they guarded Foster with him, then we felt like Foster could go to the rack and knock down some threes."

Cole finished the night with a double-double of 10 points and 10 rebounds to go along with his six steals and five assists. The sophomore battled against South Decatur's 6-foot-5 forward Lane Lauderbaugh and did not shy away from another night of being the smaller guy underneath.

"Zach (Cole) is just our guy that sometimes never gets enough credit but he rebounds, he scores, he draws fouls, blocks out, takes charges, he does the dirty work," Bomholt said. "He has been so valuable last year and this year. He really has upped his offensive game so now he has become more of a scorer in addition to everything else he does for us."

Walters led South with 19 points as the Cougars put four players in double figures despite the loss. Hunter Johnson finished with 17 points and Evan Wullenweber scored 13. Lauderbaugh, who came in averaging 23 points per game, was plagued by foul trouble and had 12 points on 3-of-10 shooting to go along with 13 rebounds before fouling out early in the fourth quarter.

On Friday, Southwestern closed out Ohio River Valley Conference play with a 67-45 win over Rising Sun at home. The Rebels finished ORVC play with a 3-3 record.

Southwestern (14-7) plays its final road game of the regular season Saturday at Scottsburg before returning home on Feb. 28 to finish out the schedule against South Dearborn.

"We made a few adjustments at halftime that I thought really helped in the second half," Wilkerson said. "But at the end of the day, we've got to put 32 minutes together. We played well in spurts and for extended periods of time, but to beat good teams, you need to do it for 32 minutes."

The City will not place a surcharge on a particular individual with a disability or any group of individuals with disabilities to cover the cost of providing auxiliary aids/services or reasonable modifications of policy, such as retrieving items from locations that are open to the public but are not accessible to person who use wheelchairs.

BRIDGE

AFTER THE LEAD, CHECK THE POINTS

John G. Vance, an English clergyman, wrote, "Remember that it is far better to follow well than to lead indifferently."

That is a good tip for bridge players. If partner suggests an opening lead to you, it will usually be right to trust him.

In this deal, if East does not double North's two-club Stayman response, West will probably lead the diamond 10 against four spades. Then declarer will probably take his three diamond winners to pitch a club from the board, play a heart to the ace and run the spade queen. When the finesse works, South will take 11 tricks: four spades, four hearts and three diamonds.

What happens, though, when West leads the club eight in answer to his partner's double?

East takes three tricks in the suit, West discarding a discouraging diamond deuce. Now East should check the high-card points. Dummy has 11, he has 13 and declarer promised 15-17. That leaves at most one for West, but East has seen all four jacks. Since West has no points, a red-suit switch is pointless.

Whenever you have taken all possible side-suit tricks, concede a ruff-and-sluff. East must lead a fourth club. If partner has either the spade eight or nine, his ruff will effect an uppercut. Dummy overruffs, but East will now collect a trump trick by covering either remaining honor when it is led from the board. Note also that it doesn't help South to ruff the fourth club with his spade nine. East will still score a trump trick.

If I may paraphrase the Bard: I count myself in nothing else so happy as in a soul remembering the high-card points.

Crazy about boyfriend, or just stir crazy with TV dates?

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I have been seeing this guy for about eight months now and don't know how to explain what the situation is. He always comes to my house, and we watch TV and do a lot of talking. I feel like I have known him my whole life and am so comfortable with him.

My problem is that we never go out or do anything together. I have asked him if he is embarrassed to be seen in public with me, and all he says, emphatically, is no, and then he changes the subject.

I truly think I'm going crazy. What do I do? — Homebound

Dear Homebound: Don't end it; just change it. If you want to go out on a date, then go out on a date. The next time he says he is going to come over to watch TV, tell him you will meet him at a local restaurant or movie theater to have a night out.

It is important to communicate to your partner what is important to you. If it's a nice night on the town, then insist on it. You are certainly entitled to one. If he refuses, then yes, it is time to look for a new partner.

Dear Annie: I'd like to share my observations about married couples who approach social gatherings with different perspectives. It is not unusual if the husband is an introvert and the wife an extrovert, or vice versa.

There are some interesting books written about these personality differences. I found out that I was an introvert and started to feel more comfortable about why I felt that way. Extroverts like to be out and about on a regular basis. Introverts prefer to be out and about for a limited period of time, and then they are ready to go home and just be. So, then, you have a human doing versus a human being. I find being around people constantly very tiring, but an extrovert finds it invigorating.

Thanks for your column. — An Introvert Married to an Extrovert

Dear Introvert Married to an Extrovert: Thanks for highlighting these key differences. It is always important to know what makes you feel good, and what makes your partner feel good.

Dear Annie: This is in response to "Frustrated Friend" and others who have hearing loss or are coping with friends' hearing loss.

Check out CaptionCall. It's a free service that provides a telephone with a monitor. I have it. Everything the other party says comes up on the monitor, and I can read it! The caller ID is terrific. I've worn hearing aids for years, and I know I am losing tones. Most calls are clear for me, but if it concerns business, an appointment or something important, I can save the call and review it.

To obtain CaptionCall, first check with your hearing specialist and see if he or she recommends it. Your specialist will sign a certification to submit with your request. CaptionCall will contact you to make an appointment, come to your house with the phone and install it. If you have problems, call the service number to schedule something quickly. — Clear As a Bell

Dear Clear As a Bell: Hearing loss can make even the easiest, simplest tasks more taxing. This service sounds like a no-brainer for ease and peace of mind. Thanks for suggesting it.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now! Annie Lane's debut book — featuring favorite columns on love, friendship, family and etiquette — is available as a paperback and e-book. Go to http://www.creatorspublishing.com for more information. Send your questions for Annie Lane to dearannie@creators.com.
